Aloo Gobi (Curried Cauliflower)

Serves 4-6. Prep time: 60 minutes.

- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 cup yellow onion, diced
- 1 pound cauliflower, cut into bite-sized florets
- 1 pound potatoes, peeled and cut into bite-sized cubes
- ½ cup water
- ¼ pound tomatoes, diced (about ½ cup)
- 1 tablespoon jalapeno, seeded and minced
- 1 tablespoon fresh garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon fresh ginger, peeled and minced
- 1½ teaspoons ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon turmeric
- 1 teaspoon garam masala
- 2 tablespoons fresh cilantro, minced
- Salt and pepper to taste

In a large saucepan or a skillet with a lid, heat the vegetable oil over medium-high heat. Sauté the onion for a few minutes and add the jalapeno, garlic, ginger, cumin and turmeric along with a pinch of salt. Sauté for 1-2 more minutes. Add the potatoes, tomatoes and the water, cover, and simmer 6-8 minutes. Add the cauliflower, cover the pot and simmer another 20 minutes until the vegetables are tender. Stir in the garam masala and cilantro and season with salt and pepper. Serve with brown or white rice.

Cauliflower

A regular on the veggie platter, raw cauliflower is crunchy-crisp and fresh-tasting, almost nutty and sweet. Cauliflower is delicious cooked too, of course; just be sure not to overcook for the best texture and nutritional value. Try it sautéed or oven-roasted, with olive oil, a bit of garlic, sea salt, and fresh herbs. Add it to a curry. Or use it as the basis of a casserole, perhaps topped with cheese. It can even be cooked and mashed like potatoes. The bright white florets are always lovely, but you can also sometimes find purple, orange and green varieties to brighten your dishes!

For more information on what's in season and great recipes, visit www.strongertogether.coop.

Cheddar

Cheddar is the most widely made and eaten cheese in the world, and no wonder! Cheddars range from mild, sweet and grassy to sharp and assertive, with textures from smooth to crumbly, depending on how long the cheeses have been aged. You can find Cheddars that pair well with everything from apple pie to sautéed mushrooms. Cheddar cheese is a versatile ingredient in soups, breads, casseroles, omelets, sandwiches, and quiches. It melts well, shreds easily, and transforms an ordinary plate of steamed broccoli or cauliflower into a special side dish.

The Real Deal

Cheddar cheeses will keep for two months or more, wrapped and refrigerated. A quarter pound will make about a cup of grated cheese, and just in case you're completely out of Cheddar, Gouda can be a fine substitute in most recipes.

Preserving the Harvest

From keeping lettuce crisp to enjoying homemade tomato sauce year-round, food preservation methods are the key to making good things last. Preserving food can be as simple as squeezing a little lemon juice on an avocado slice to prevent browning or as complicated as pressure canning your own venison stew. It's only natural to want to enjoy your favorite foods throughout the year, and to keep them tasting as close to fresh-picked as you can. Food preservation can be much more than just practical methods to keep an abundance of fresh food from going bad. A bumper crop of raspberries or a CSA box full of cabbage can lead to new recipes and fun, creative ways to enjoy your favorite foods. If you think fresh basil is delicious during the summer, imagine how delicious that bright spark of flavor would be on some creamy pasta in the middle of winter! Preserving food also translates into saving money and keeps food out of the compost bin.
